Councillor and Member reports Updates

Ravindra Dongre gave an update on the CiS program in India. It is growing with thousand of children adding to the existing numbers. He highlighted the main challenge being that of formation of teachers. But was happy that CiS is working on it through the development of on-line support.

Hadi Karimi reported that in Iran they had a visit by FIDE Senior Trainer Smbat Lputian from Armenia to assist in chess for schools and training. Now they are working on having to encompass disabled children and it's a social project that needs attention.

Bernardo Roselli presented a computer game called 'Chess and Legend' that is in Spanish but has since been translated in English. See <https://www.youtube.com/watch?t=11&v=qqGgyavTUl0>. This is a chess program for children aged 5-10 years. Uruguay has used it on a state program where they gave one laptop per child, and have reached 100,000 children.

Tshepo Sitale reported that Africa held its first Africa Schools Chess Championships in Gaborone, Botswana for the first time in history and the event was a success with 119 participants from Botswana, South Africa, Zimbabwe and Namibia. He pointed out that the online area is still a challenge for Africa as internet connectivity was slow and not there in some parts of Africa. So children are not able to join the CiS online membership and access resources and material for chess, hence the need for a special project for Africa.

Kevin O'Connell presented some of the videos that form part of the Early Years Skills Program that would not have been possible without the assistance of Alessandro Dominici and Alfieri Bianco.

Tshenolo Maruatona from Botswana gave an overview that the Africa Schools Chess Championships held in Botswana were a success and in his view, having children play chess is not a problem but wants CiS to come up with a program of having Chess integrated in the Schools curriculum. The chairperson responded that he will avail himself at Continental meeting to discuss further on specific projects relevant and appropriate for each continent.

Dirk Jordan VP of Deutsche Schachjugend, mentioned that they had a special project and now they have over 150,000 kids participating. In many cases they use a box containing 60 different games to allow children to play 'chess' of various kinds. He handed one of the Methoden fur den Schach-Unterricht boxes as a gift to CiS chairperson on behalf of that organization.

Alexander Kostyev presented a video on using physical education as part of a chess program (psychomotricity) being developed by Russian Social State University (RGSU). The program was ongoing and, when completed, will be sent to the Russian Ministry of Education for review before end of the year.

CiS-TRG

The Chairperson informed the meeting that TRG offered to transfer the SI title to CiS.

FIDE CiS - Premium Student Membership.

Each Federation should discuss the Premium Student Membership opportunity. This is an open opportunity for them to build membership and funds, using material provided by FIDE, whereby 10euro is to be paid to FIDE but most of the funds are reimbursed to the Federation and FIDE keeps a small portion, about 2euros, for administrative purposes.

The chairperson allayed fears that FIDE wanted to bypass the Federation. He further stated that the platform is availed on many languages and currently there were more than 10 languages.

Verbal reports

GM Susan Polgar congratulated the CiS on the good work and pledged her support as someone who works with kids and education for chess.

Mohammed Hatem reported on universities chess in Asia. He shared the project he is working on in Palestine with an American University that was to be completed in November.

Khaled Ezedan Hijawe is starting a project in Palestine schools with support from the Ministry of Education.

Mr. Taha Husain AHMED JASIM mentioned the challenge that the Education ministry does not recognize chess as a sport. The advice was to use examples from other countries where chess is recognized as a Sport to build their case and the fact that most Chess Federations are NOC affiliates. Attendees discussed and shared ideas and initiatives on selling chess in schools. All agreed that Chess in Schools – Our Global Future (the main FIDE-CiS promotional booklet - new edition next year) was an excellent tool for this.

Thomas Luther Chairperson of the Disability Commission commended CiS for the good work and appreciated that the CiS web site has very good content. He suggested that we attempt to commercialize that material. The Chairperson agreed that this was a good suggestion which will be explored since it could generate revenue for FIDE and the Commission.

The Chairperson closed the meeting and thanked everyone for attending and appreciated the work they are doing in regards to Chess in Schools. Council members for CiS were asked to remain behind for a brief meeting.

Council Members met shortly after the meeting and agreed that:

- The Chairperson congratulated Mongolia for once again showing the way, in that during the closing ceremony of the u16 Chess Olympiad in Ulaanbaatar, an agreement was signed by Yadamsuren Sanjmyatav MP, boosting the number of FIDE Premium Student Members by a record breaking 10,184. This Chess in Schools development is expected to make it into the Guinness Book of Records.
- Prize award for best video on Chess introduction is a good idea. The award could perhaps be named after a famous chess educator. Federations are requested to send suggestions.
